New Community Research Special

Bjorn Howard, Group Chief Executive Officer

Welcome to our autumn newsletter. Since our last update we've had the general election and have been encouraged to hear the new government's renewed investment in housing and commitment to build more homes. As a leading housing association we know we have a vital role to play in building the affordable homes this country desperately needs.

During the last financial year we delivered nearly 1,000 new homes (including 517 homes for social and affordable rent and 405 shared ownership homes) across the south of England and London. We also invested £122 million in repairs and maintenance, this along with the significant investment we have made in our Customer Services modernisation programme, shapes how we deliver the best possible homes, services and experiences for our customers.

Launching our New Community research

To better understand the role of housing associations (HAs) and what 'community' means to people in the UK, we surveyed 2,000 adults. We hope the findings are useful for you to explore what the public think and what they want when it comes to housing and HAs in the future.
